

To Kill a Mockingbird - Rosetta Stone

After reading the paragraph that accompanies the picture below, answer the following questions. You may need to use additional sources for some.

1. Who found the artifact? When and where was it found?
2. Why do you suppose it is written in three languages? What are the three languages?
3. How would you go about deciphering such an artifact?
4. What is the importance of being able to “read” the stone?
5. What assumption(s) can you make about Mr. Avery from his remark about the Rosetta Stone?

BONUS: Make up your own code and use a phrase or sentence from the advertisement below to create a an encoded message. Be sure to write out the code and answer.

THE ROSETTA STONE Egyptian, 195 B.C.

What better gift for book lovers than a genuine reproduction of the stone that unlocked the secrets of Egyptian writing. Here is an amazingly detailed and beautiful replica of the original Rosetta Stone, which, in 1799, was discovered by Napoleon and enable French Egyptologists to decipher the elaborate picture-language of Egyptian hieroglyphics. Impressive in its execution, mesmerizing in detail, this museum-quality piece presents 14 lines of hieroglyphics, 28 lines of Egyptian demotic script, and 54 lines of Greek, with every character finely carved into the surface of this splendidly sculpted facsimile of the original in the British Museum.

To Kill a Mockingbird - Rosetta Stone

After reading the paragraph that accompanies the picture below, answer the following questions. You may need to use additional sources for some.

1. Who found the artifact? When and where was it found?
2. Why do you suppose it is written in three languages? What are the three languages?
3. How would you go about deciphering such an artifact?
4. What is the importance of being able to “read” the stone?
5. What assumption(s) can you make about Mr. Avery from his remark about the Rosetta Stone?

BONUS: Make up your own code and use a phrase or sentence from the advertisement below to create a an encoded message. Be sure to write out the code and answer.

THE ROSETTA STONE Egyptian, 195 B.C.

What better gift for book lovers than a genuine reproduction of the stone that unlocked the secrets of Egyptian writing. Here is an amazingly detailed and beautiful replica of the original Rosetta Stone, which, in 1799, was discovered by Napoleon and enable French Egyptologists to decipher the elaborate picture-language of Egyptian hieroglyphics. Impressive in its execution, mesmerizing in detail, this museum-quality piece presents 14 lines of hieroglyphics, 28 lines of Egyptian demotic script, and 54 lines of Greek, with every character finely carved into the surface of this splendidly sculpted facsimile of the original in the British Museum.